DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the disclosed prior art in the instant specification, in view of Yamaguchi et al 6,636,186. The disclosed prior art teaches the claimed subject matter except for showing use of gas suspension as conventional, in lieu of the typical liquid suspension. The patent to Yamaguchi et al is applied for teaching that it is conventional to gas suspension and such is disclosed as conventional . See abstract lines 1-3 for instance. In view of Yamaguchi et al it would have been obvious to modify the disclosed prior art to use a gas suspension in lieu of the conventional liquid suspension, for effecting the display, to provide and enhanced and uniform display.

Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the disclosed prior art in the instant specification in view of either Yakushiji 2005/0001810 or Kitano et al 2005/0052402

The disclosed prior art teaches the claimed subject matter except for showing use of a gas suspension in the capsules. Yakushiji teach that gas dispersion has been used in electrophoretic displays. See paragraphs 0268 and 0475 for instance. Though the particles settle faster than use in a liquid suspension, the present claims are devoid of any specific structure to preclude such faster settling.

Kitano et al teach in paragraphs 0042,0044, 0127 that gas can be used in the suspension.

In view of the prior art teaching liquid suspension in capsules, and in view of both Kitano et al and Yakushiji teaching the conventionality of gas suspension in lieu of liquid suspension, it would have been obvious to modify the disclosed prior art to use a gaseous suspension in lieu of a liquid suspension. Note that the claims are also silent as to the presence of liquid with the gas. Any gas in a capsule, with liquid suspension, (the capsule not completely filled with liquid) would teach the claimed subject matter.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-8 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
